Flow guarantees peak performance on demand!

Different educational institutions certainly require different teaching methods.

But as an educator, isn't your primary goal to spark interest, nurture it, and – ideally - even inspire genuine enthusiasm?

Wasn't that one of the reasons you chose a career in teaching?

To see that special light in your students' eyes when the spark of enthusiasm catches?

It is like a great actor captivating an audience with a story - one where the viewers are desperate to hear what happens next.

Everyone remembers someone in their life who managed to inspire him in just that way.

Yet everyone also remembers the exact opposite - crushing boredom and the longing for the bell to ring. But what distinguishes the one from the other? Boring teachers may technically convey knowledge, but fail to connect their own enthusiasm - fueled by the power of their presence and intuition - with the subject matter; consequently, they lack the power to inspire, and enthusiasm fails to take hold.

Inspiring teachers, on the other hand, are inspired themselves. They feel what they say and remain connected to their intuition, fully trusting in it through a state of flow, and simply allowing his listeners to share in that experience. What if you could leave behind all those distracting mechanisms and let your intuition guide you, using flow to inspire and captivate your audience?

Through targeted Into Your Flow-Coaching, I'll show you which inner doors to open in order to be remembered as an inspiring teacher or speaker.
